

accretion (in atmospheric chemistry)

The process by which aerosols grow in size by external addition of various chemical species; a form of agglomeration.

1990, 62, 2169