

continuous wave (CW) laser

CW operation of a laser means that the laser is continuously pumped and continuously emits electromagnetic radiation. The emission can occur in a single cavity mode or on multiple modes.

Note: Some lasers are called CW mode-locked. This indicates that the pulse average power is constant, i.e., there is no Q-switched mode locking.

2007, 79, 318