

desolvation (in flame spectroscopy)

The process of evaporation of the solvent from an aerosol of fine droplets (the droplets being the result of nebulizing a solution). Desolvation converts the aerosol into a dry aerosol consisting of a suspension of solid or molten particles of the solute.

O.B. 165