

α -expulsion (alpha-expulsion)(in photochemistry)

A general reaction by which a group attached to the alpha carbon of an excited chromophore is expelled either as an odd electron species or as an anionic species. This reaction should be distinguished from an α - (alpha-) cleavage.

1988, 60, 1059