

entrance channel

The region of a potential-energy surface or hypersurface that corresponds to molecular configurations that are closer in geometry to those of the reactants than to those of the products.

1996, 68, 165