

image dissection tube

A two-dimensional radiation detector in which the electron image produced by a photo-emitting surface, usually a photocathode, is focused in the plane of a defining aperture. Magnetic or electric fields scan this image across the defining aperture.

1995, 67, 1756