

temperature jump

A relaxation technique in which the temperature of a chemical system is suddenly raised. The system then relaxes to a new state of equilibrium, and analysis of the relaxation processes provides rate constants.

See also relaxation.

1996, 68, 189; 1993, 65, 2297