

time-dependent stoichiometry

A state in which if intermediates are formed in significant amounts during the course of a reaction, the overall stoichiometric equation does not apply throughout.

1981, 53, 754