

zone melting method of preconcentration

A technique based on the different solubility of microcomponents in the liquid and solid matrix. It has a limited field of application for the analysis of fusible (and stable) substances.

1979, 51, 1200